TABLE OF CONTENTS

List of contributors ................................................................. IX

  1. Simplification as a recapitulatory formula of the balance between constitutional values ........................................................... 1
  2. An initial classification .......................................................... 3
  3. Preliminary conclusions ......................................................... 7

Edmondo Mostacci, Instruments of mutual consent and simplification: France on the path to administrative modernisation ........... 11
  1. Simplification and modernisation: a preliminary overview ...... 11
  2. Administrative simplification through legislative reform and government policy .............................................................. 13
  3. Public administration contracts and enhancement of mutual consent ...................................................................................... 17
  4. Participation of citizens in the administrative procedure and the principle of contradiction .................................................. 21
  5. Concluding remarks ............................................................... 22

Giancarlo Rando, Administrative simplification and participation: the Spanish case ................................................................. 25
  1. The Constitution ..................................................................... 25
  2. Procedural laws previous to the Constitution ............................ 26
  3. Instruments of participation: ley 30/1992, acuerdos voluntarios, public services ................................................................. 30
  4. Instruments of simplification .................................................. 40
2. The United States: rulemaking v. adjudication in a framework of systemic rigidity ................................................................. 105
2.1. Administrative Dispute Resolution ........................................ 108
2.2. Reg-neg as a simplified starting point for rulemaking .......... 111
2.3. The centralising effects of Regulatory Impact Analysis in the context of simplification and complication ......................... 113
2.4. Public-private partnerships and protection of competition .... 115

Lorenzo Cuocolo, The decision-making processes of the European Community Administration ........................................................... 117
1. European Administrative Law: the contours et détours of a discipline in the light of a destructurised form of government ...... 117
2. Administrative procedure and decision-making processes in the public sector ................................................................. 123
3. The Rulemaking of the European Commission: composition of interests and accountability .................................................... 125
3.1. The Committee System ............................................................ 126
3.2. The development of forms of participation .............................. 129
4. Sector previsions on the administrative procedure of the European Community ................................................................. 131
5. The European Ombudsman, a safeguard against maladministration .................................................................................. 135
6. The principles established by the European Court of Justice with regard to administrative procedure ................................. 139
7. Administrative Procedure in the Charter of Nice and in the Constitutional Treaty ................................................................. 141
8. Concluding remarks: criticism towards the substantialist approach .............................................................................. 143

Justin O. Frosini, Concluding remarks ........................................ 149